The Sporting Lisbon vs Manchester City live stream sees a return to Champions League action for the knockout stages after a lengthy winter break.

Manchester City emerged at the top of Group A to get to this stage, finishing ahead of Paris Saint Germain to do so. Sporting Lisbon, meanwhile, finished behind Ajax in Group C.

The Portuguese side are also second in their domestic league. They were engaged in a chaotic match with first-placed Porto on Friday night which saw five players sent off — four as the result of a 40-man brawl at full-time. That finished in a draw, but Sporting had won their two previous matches.

The Sporting Lisbon vs Manchester City live stream takes place today (Tuesday, February 15).

Pep Guardiola's team had a far more serene weekend, cruising 4-0 past Norwich City on Saturday. Raheem Sterling seems to have found form once again, scoring a hat-trick. They are unbeaten in six games in all competitions, with just one draw amongst those results

They might sit comfortably at the top of the Premier League table, but Pep Guardiola's side are under a lot of pressure when it comes to the Champions League. They came close last season, loosing in the final to Chelsea, but it is the competition the club are now most desperate to win.

Guardiola himself seemed to acknowledge this pressure in the pre-match press conference, warning that "to do better than last season is not easy." He will be up against relative rookie Ruben Amorim. The 37-year old has been in charge of the Lisbon team for less than two years, but did manage to deliver the club's 19th league title last season.

Jack Grealish and Kyle Walker will not feature for the visiting side in the Sporting Lisbon vs Manchester City live stream. Record signing Grealish is suffering with a shin injury, while defender Walker was sent off against RB Leipzig in the group stage and must serve a three-game suspension. Meanwhile, forward Gabriel Jesus remains out due to an injury picked up on international duty with Brazil in January.

While the Premier League champions will be expected to overcome the Primeira Liga champions over this two legged tie, Sporting did actually win the last time the two met. They knocked out Manchester City on away goals in the Europa League round of 16 back in 2012.

Sporting's Pedro Goncalves, who was previously at Wolverhampton Wanderers, is a player attracting some attention around Europe. Manchester City will also have to be wary of Paulinho, who has scored 12 goals in all competitions this season, including three in the Champions League.

The home side will want to put on a good show as one of the best teams in Europe pays them a visit. See how it goes with the Sporting Lisbon vs Manchester City live stream, which we will show you how to watch below.
